A Newsboy's Story

A ROMANTIC NARRATIVE OF HIGH PATRIOTISM

[Milwaukee Sentinel.]

In the town of Bennington, in the Green Mountains of Vermont, in the spring of 1861, there lived a poor widow with six children, five boys and one little girl, the youngest of the former a cripple of twelve years old. When the wires flashed the news from Washington all over our land that the rebels had fired upon Fort Sumter, and that from old Vermont go hundreds to the seat of war. The young cripple had his heart fired, and from Crown Point to Bennington, away from home and clothing, he tried to enlist in the army. But his mother could not let the last member of his family go, and the disappointment almost killed the boy. Determined to run to the front and having visited every place in the village where he was likely to find a job, he left home and joined the army camp at Troy, New York, and on the 10th of November 1862 he went to Washington for a supply of papers. Having accomplished this object, the young lad set out on his return for the camp, but, in order to travel a distance of thirty miles, a change of position by the army during his absence had occurred, and as a consequence he came into the rebel picket line and was captured by Gen. J. E. B. Stuart's men. He was taken to Warrenton and from there sent to Libby prison in Richmond, arriving there Nov. 19. Maj. Turner was in command of the prison, and when the young prisoner was brought in to his presence, observing that he was crippled, spoke kindly to him and after his name had been enrolled asked him the customary question. If he had any money or valuables about his person.

The frightened boy had managed to conceal his money—$38.00—in his boots, and in answer to the question, put his hand down and, while a tear drop glistened in his bright eye, and his boyish lip quivered, he brought it forth and handed it to the jailor, trying hard to choke down the swelling in his throat, he told of his widowed mother at home and of his brothers in the army, his having sent him his money, filling papers and saying, "I to send, with his brothers' wages, to his mother." The major folded the boy's pass, pocketed the money and handed to him "You shall have this again, my boy, when you are permitted to go from here."

Six weeks after and the lad was paroled and repairing to Maj. Turner's office, the kind officer, handing him the package of money and the pass, said "Here is your money, my boy." With again trembling hands but a joyous heart, the little fellow took the package. He was sent to Washington, and a few weeks afterward was going his old rounds selling newspapers. The boy was "Doc." Asbury, "newsboy of the Iron Brigade," who now resides in Milwaukee, and he gives us these facts during the late reunion of the Iron Brigade in this city.

DANGERS IN THE DESERT AND ON THE NILE—A HARD ROAD FOR WOLSELEY TO TRAVEL.

[Albany Journal.]

Across the Nubian desert, so-called, in the month of February, a season that is accounted the most salubrious for travel in this region of Africa. Yet the ridiculously small number of those who have ever made the journey I shall never forget. The distance between Korosko and Berber is 120 miles by the camel route and few other than military commandants and civil functionaries have ever made this exacting journey. The dangers in crossing this desert may be stated in a few words. They are, rainfall, and among them—first, physical collapse from the climate, second, the direct absorption of all water supply by the sun or drying, the prostration of the entire camel force by heat, third, the being buried up in a sand simoon-storm, and fourth, lost to life and sight as if sunk in the depths of the sea, and lastly, attacks by predatory Arabs, or robbery and murder by those in the penal colonies of the Soudan.

In the first particular, let it be said the dangers arising from the climate on the constitution of the ordinary human being are not as potential as might be supposed. Take my own case. In this long camel ride my moustache was literally burned off my face, as were my eye-brows, and my face cracked and peeled, creating an agonizing pain not easily described. The skin on all of the exposed parts of the

A Noteworthy Omission

[Boston Journal.]

The meeting of the Independents at Tremont Temple was advertised for days as a Cleveland and Hendricks affair, yet the name of Hendricks was not once mentioned by any of the speakers. If Cleveland is a Presidential possibility, so also is Hendricks, only one degree removed. The gentlemen who participated in the Tremont Temple meeting do not need to be told the importance of the Vice Presidency. Twice within twenty years and for more than seven years out of the twenty, the Vice President has been called to the full exercise of the duties of the Presidential office. The Independents who propose to vote for Cleveland for President will have to vote also for Hendricks as a possible President. Is it not singular that in the course of a whole evening's speech making it was not found convenient even to mention the name of Hendricks? Why this reticence? Why was there not a single argument advanced to show why it would be desirable, or even tolerable, for a man with Republican sympathies to prefer as a possible President, Thomas A. Hendricks to John A. Logan?

One of the speakers disposed of the war and of all questions arising from it by the sage remark that Lincoln is dead, and that it is the questions of the present which concern us, and he inquired triumphantly whether it was alleged that the Democrats of 1884 are the Democrats who brought on the war. This inquiry and the reference to Lincoln were more unfortunate than the speaker's political auditors who applauded him could understand. Lincoln is dead, but his memory is not dead. The Democrats have nominated for Vice President a man who in the darkest hours of the war went over his State, publicly denouncing Lincoln as an unmitigated tyrant, and endeavoring to arouse the people to overthrow his Administration.

The war is over, but it is not forgotten. The Democrats have nominated for Vice President a man who opposed every war measure, who resisted the abolition of the fugitive slave law and the passage of the amendments against slavery, and who has passed by every chance in his power the administration which was doing all in its power to put down the rebellion. Very few of the Democrats of 1884 are guilty of any responsibility for the war, but Thomas A. Hendricks is not. He stood and was not ashamed to call Joseph E. Brown a patriot for his treasonable utterances, for blows from behind the shield, and for insult to the memory of Lincoln, which must be resented by every patriot.

The Democrats in nominating him have accepted the responsibility for his past. The Independents in Independent Tremont Temple, by their silence,

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS:

For President:

JAMES G. BLAINE,

OF MAINE.

For Vice-President:

JOHN A. LOGAN.

OF ILLINOIS.

FOR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS:
For Electors at Large:
JOHN N. CASE, of Rockland
WESTON F. MILLIKEN, of Portland.

First District—CHARLES McMONALS.
Second District—JOHN G. RICHARDSON.
Third District—ABNER CHURCH.
Fourth District—CHARLES P. A. JOHNSON.

THE GRAND RESULT.

The returns from Ohio are still incomplete, but the latest figures indicate that our first estimate was not far out of the way, and that the Republicans have won a splendid victory by wiping out the Democratic majority of last year and rolling up a Republican majority of 12,000. This has without doubt been the most desperate contest on the part of the Democrats in the history of the State, and this splendid victory, in the face of the most adverse circumstances will have a marked effect on the general election in November. The battle will now be waged in New York with renewed vigor and will not let up until every Northern State has given its electoral vote to Blaine and Logan.

The result in Ohio shows several things. First that all the talk about disaffection in the Republican ranks is the merest nonsense. It does not exist. Second, that the people of Ohio like those of Maine have placed the seal of condemnation on the slanderous attacks and charges made in this campaign. Since Mr. Blaine has been in Ohio his would-be defamers have flooded the State with the Mulligan letter business and other matters of a like nature; their public speakers have devoted themselves solely to personal abuse and their newspapers have published again and again the ridiculous stories put in circulation by the Democratic Bureau of Defamation. The people have heard and read these charges, judged them on their merits, found them utterly devoid of truth and repudiated them at the polls.

The people of this country believed in James G. Blaine when he was nominated in spite of those same charges; they believe in him to-day more firmly than ever, and on the fourth day of November will elevate him to the highest place in their gift.

The result also shows that Protection to home industry is a question of vast importance to the American people. The tariff was the chief topic of Mr. Blaine's speeches as well as the other speakers who have participated in the campaign. The question in all its bearings has been laid before the voters for their consideration and the result is that we have gained several Congressmen and defeated the outspoken advocate of free trade, Representative Frank Hurd. At the last session of the present Congress, of which Mr. Hurd is a member, he was one of the leaders in the agitation that resulted in the Morrison bill, the first step in the direction of free trade, which received the cordial support of an overwhelming majority of his party. That agitation of the tariff is the cause of much of the existing business depression, and that bill, had it became a law, as it would had it not been for the Republicans, would have been disastrous to this country. The people of Ohio understood this and also remembered that the Democrats had broken faith with them, and instead of returning Mr. Hurd sent a Republican in his place. This shows that the people of Ohio stand for Protection.

Now for New York.

It means a Republican victory in every Northern State in November.

The people of Ohio have read the Mulligan letters and rendered their verdict.

The "tin-cans" are feeling very well, thank you. How is it with the mugwumps?

The editor of the Commercial is still looking for that "great Independent revolt." Better get a powerful magnifying glass.

Whereabouts is that American disaffection located that we read of in the Democratic papers? It is evident Carl Schurz failed to find it.

Score another point for Protection to American industry and labor. The people are not yet ready to open their doors to the British manufacturer.

The "Blaine Combination" is still on the road, but the Cleveland crowd have had a very poor season and as the cold wave has already struck it, will soon go into winter quarters so bankrupt that it will never be in condition for future service.

The Portland Argus says the Democrats "rejoice" to think the Republican majority was no larger. We have noticed that the Democrats feel remarkably jubilant; just about as happy as a man watching the preparations for his own funeral.

How cheerful those distinguished Boston gentlemen who contributed $100,000 to the lost cause must feel about this time. Neither mud nor money will save you this year gentlemen. This is an aggressive campaign and the people are aroused.

The Commercial pretends that it had no hopes of Ohio, but if so why has it filled its columns for days past with matter carefully selected to make it appear that the result in that State was extremely doubtful, with the chances in favor of the Democrats?

The Nation's Adversity is Democracy's Opportunity.

[Boston Traveller, Oct. 1.]

While Ohio is voting, and the people of the North are waiting anxiously for her verdict, it is a seasonable moment to call attention to a singular fact in connection with the canvass just closed in that great Western State.

What has been the appeal of the Democratic party? To the intelligence, the patriotism, the hope, and the virtues of the people of Ohio, or to their ignorance, their passions, their fears and their vices? Says the Columbus, O., correspondent of a Democratic paper, summing up the situation on the eve of the election: "The Democrats believe they have a good chance of success, because the German brewers and saloon-keepers have identified the Republicans with the prohibition movement, and believe Mr. Blaine to be the secret friend and ally of that movement. Further, they count upon large gains in the mining and some of the manufacturing districts, where many workingmen are out of employ, and, therefore, discontented."

Such is the basis of all the Democratic hopes in Ohio—the fears of the beer-sellers and the discontents of idle laboring men. A saloon-keeper, suspecting that the Republican party is more friendly to temperance legislation than the Democratic, and a laboring man temporarily out of employment inclined to blame the party in power for the fact,—these are the types of the two classes of citizens by whose collective action the Democracy fondly hopes that it may snatch a victory in the Buckeye State. And thus has it ever been! The greatest social evils have always been the bulwarks of the Democratic party. Slavery, the great social crime, like slavery, polygamy and the drink traffic, all alike have found their first picket line and their last ditch to be the Democratic party.

Duelling and prize-fighting are unlawful in all the thirty-eight States, but they survive in defiance of the law, and are tolerated by the public opinion of a few States,—all Democratic! The convict chain-gang, worked under the lash, the public whipping-post, and the death penalty for crimes other than murder, all continue to stamp a few of our States as semi-barbarous commonwealths,—they all give an immense Democratic majority. The sense of public honor has been low enough to permit repudiation of honest debts in a few States of this Union,—they will all vote for Cleveland. There are four or five States in which men are still so occasionally murdered for opinion's sake, shot down like dogs for daring to be Republicans; where free speech is stifled, where the ballot is a mockery, and election-day a farce,—and they, too, are all Democratic States.

There is a Territory in the far West, where the population practice as a religious duty a refined and humane modification of the Cleveland moral code, explained by the Evening Post, justified by Dr. William Everett, excused by Mr. Colfax, and forgiven by Dr. James Freeman Clarke. It is known throughout Christendom as the moral plague-spot of our country, the social leprosy of the New World. It wants to become a State, and if it ever does it will give a Democratic majority as heavy as Alabama. Why? Said the Utah delegate to Congress not long ago: "Our people are naturally Democrats in sympathy, because the Democrats are the only ones who have shown any disposition to respect our rights."

The Democratic party's appeal is ever to the baser sides of our national life. Its brightest hopes are the Republic's darkest fears. Our vices and our miseries are its strongest campaign arguments. Drink is its faithful ally, Distress its constant companion, and Destitution its best friend. Crime cuddles up to it as naturally as a kitten to a warm brick, and Want waits upon it as inevitably as the sordid matter follows an army with followers. Wherever wrong is fighting to perpetuate its iniquities, and wherever misfortune has brought suffering in its train, there Democracy, like the vampire that it is, always fattening in the graveyards, sucks its main sustenance and grows strongest.

When the Union cause went lowest in the dark days of 1862 and '63, Democratic hopes went highest. As the flag dropped the Bourbon heart rose, and when the flag streamed victoriously on the breeze, the Bourbon heart sank. When the hard times of 1873-76 came, and working-class discontent threatened the communities with dangerous outbreaks of violence, when failures abounded, tramps swarmed, and labor riots alarmed the country, the Democratic prospects brightened.

The Nation's adversity is Democracy's opportunity. Black Friday was a Bourbon holiday, and the Pittsburg riots were bright with Democratic promise. And as it has been so is it. The starved saloon-keeper, voting in defence of the open bars of Ohio, and the idle laborer, without work and wages, made resentful and unreasoning by his passing misfortune,—each alike the types of American citizenship on which the Democracy, "hungry and thirsty, too," as Mr. Curtis described it, builds its great expectations for 1884.

Sober citizens may well pause and reflect on this spectacle. Is it worth while to put a party into power whose main sources of strength are the chief sources of national weakness? A liquor bar is opened, and Democracy has a new headquarters every time; a furnace goes out, and Democracy has gained some votes every time; a factory shuts down, and Democracy makes more votes every time; a panic sweeps over the land, and Democracy makes votes by the myriad every time. If general bankruptcy and universal distress come, Democracy's full day of jubilee comes every time.

Is that the kind of party that rational business men and honest workingmen want to take the reins of Government? We cannot believe it. Better, far the party whose allies are the free school-house and the busy mill, which thrives when the country thrives, and prospers when the Nation prospers too. The times are not as good as they might be, it is said. Granted! But they are nowhere near as bad as to justify a Democratic national victory. It has not come to that yet.

The Republicans carry Ohio by the usual majority—on the whole the Democrats have the best of it—Republicans rejoice, because they are not annihilated—probably they will have 10,000 in Ohio—this will hardly make the State sure for Blaine. These are some of the headings that appeared over the election returns in the Boston Post, and we reproduce them as a campaign curiosity. They are not especially lucid, but then that is not to be expected of the Post. If the result in Ohio is what the Democrats call getting the "best of it" they ought to be happy in the fact that they will get lots more of it in November.

Carl Schurz will have to get up a little party of his own hereafter. The Republicans don't want him, and the Democrats won't have him, as he has twice proved a heavy load for them.

The Boston Traveller says "A member of Rev. James Freeman Clarke's church informs us that the overwhelming majority of the congregation have no sympathy with his political teachings at this time, but, on the contrary, are both surprised and pained at his position, especially in the matter of his treatment of Cleveland's immoralities. A poll of the church would, says our informant, show a heavy majority for Blaine and Logan." Several members have felt so aggrieved at their pastor's recent utterances touching Cleveland's criminal career, that they have absented themselves from their pews for the past two or three Sundays.

The Democrats right after the Maine election asserted that they didn't expect any different result. Now they have known all along that Ohio was going Republican and in November they may be expected to announce that they have had no hopes of electing Cleveland from the outset and have been supporting him simply for the fun of the thing.

The campaign may teach the New York Evening Post, New York Times, Harper's Weekly, Boston Herald, etc., that lying does not pay in the long run.

The election of Hon. Wm. McKinley is a stinging rebuke to the Democratic House that stole his seat in Congress.

AFTERNOON DESPATCHES

CINCINNATI, O, Oct 15 Both the Democratic and Republican papers this morning agree that yesterday's election in Cincinnati was the bloodiest ever held here The Democratic papers assert that United States Deputy Marshals were employed illegally in Republican districts Yours will that the Republican press construe the conduct of the police force and Deputy Sheriffs in a similar manner comparing it to the Mississippi policy The following is a list of the officers killed outright Joe Lowry, shot in the spine, fatal, Bridget Hughes, struck in the head with a stone, dangerous, John Murphy, shot in the throat and flesh wound, Andrew Bennett, (colored) shot in the side, dangerous, Sam Taylor, (colored) shot in the side, serious, Mike Gorman, policeman shot in the side, dangerous, Henry Sherlock, shot in the back dangerous John Dolton shot in the leg not dangerous Henry Brown, (colored) shot in the abdomen The last three were wounded in an affray at the corner of Sixth and Freeman street, late last night Between 50 and 100 persons took part in the affair, which grew out of an attempt by Gorman to arrest a negro Gorman was shot in the back by some unknown person and a general fusillade followed, 100 shots being fired The riot in Northern was suppressed and the disturbance quelled, after two policemen and Brown had been shot besides those injured as above mentioned Albert Russell (colored) was killed

The following Congressmen were elected Republicans—First District, Henry Butterworth, Second District, Geo E Brown, Fourth District, John F Follett, Eighth District, John Little, Sixth District W C Cooper, Twelfth District, A C Thompson, Fourteenth District, C H Grosvenor, Seventeenth District, J D Taylor, Eighteenth District, F H Taylor, Nineteenth District Ferry B Taylor Twentieth District William McKinley

Democrats—Fifth District, Benjamin Le Fevre, Sixth District W D Hill, Seventh District, George E Seney Eleventh District, W W Ellsbery, Twelfth District, James H Outhwaite, Fifteenth District, Beriah Wilkins Sixteenth District, George W Geddes, Twenty first District, M S Forney

The Third District is doubtful and close In the Tenth District the chances are in favor of Jacob Romers Montgomery county, the returns from which are all in, gives 500 Democratic majority for the State ticket—a Republican gain of 170 The Republicans have elected their Sheriff, Mr Weir, and Republican Circuit Judges in the Second District are elected by 3,500 majority

Well Done Hamilton County

CINCINNATI, O, Oct 15 In Hamilton county 96 out of 109 precincts give the following Republican majorities on the State ticket Secretary of State, James W Robinson 2,262 Judge of Supreme Court, Wm Johnson, 2,449 Member of Board of Public Works, Leo Hickinger, 2,016 Congressional ticket First District, Benjamin Butterworth, 1,600 Second District, Chas E Brown, 2,078 County ticket Sheriff, Samuel Beresford, 4,078, Probate Judge, H P Goebel, 2,292, County Collector, Rufus B Smith, 3,164, Coroner, A J Carrick, 3,031, Commissioner, John Tunstelle, 3,013, Member of Board of Control, Morris Rauh 4,205, The remaining twelve precincts will not materially alter these majorities, which are all Republican Beresford, for sheriff, ran ahead of his ticket, as did all the county officers compared with the candidates on the State ticket The three Republican candidates on the judicial ticket are also elected

Cuyahoga's Handsome Gain.

CLEVELAND, O, Oct 15 Full election returns show that Robinson the Republican candidate for Secretary of State, received in this county 22 634 votes, and Newman, the Democratic candidate 20,646, Robinson over Newman, 2,228 Johnson, Republican for Supreme Court has 22,946, Martin, Democrat, 20,720 For member of the Board for Public Works Hickinger, Republican 22,347, Beaver Democrat, 20,418, Martin A Foraker Democrat, for Congressman from the 21st district, a part of this county, received 10 215, and C. C Burnett, Republican, 7,011

The wards and townships of the ninth district gave E B Taylor (Rep) 9,110, Horace Alvord, Dem., 2 113.

The Republicans elect their entire county ticket, including Sheriff For Probate Judge, D H Filden, Rep., received 21,692, A Z Zehring, Dem 20,010 For County Clerk, H W Kitchen, Rep., 23,382; Conrad Maloney, Dem 20,223 For Sheriff, C C Dowstoe, Rep, 22 401, Ed. Sawyer, Dem, 21,061. For County Prosecutor, Alexander Hadden, Rep., 23,021, John F. Webb, Dem., 20,340 For County Commissioner, B. F. Johnson, Rep, 23,076, J. W. Harper, Dem, 20,377. For Surveyor, J. D. Varney, Rep, 23,053, D. C Bishop, Dem, 20,887. For Justice of the Peace, C. G. C. Legerwall, Dem, 19,412; Geo. Schindler, Rep, 18,332. For Circuit Court Judges, G. E. Haynes, Rep, 22,026 W. Hapson, Rep, 22,472; C. C. Baldwin, Rep 23,189; V. P. Kline, Dem, 21,533 L. D. Stratton, Dem, 20,367; J. T. Grover, Dem, 20,383. The Prohibitionists cast 303 votes for E. J Morris for Secretary of State, 275 for Rosebrough for Supreme Court Judge, and 297 for Kirkendell for member of Board of Public Works The average Prohibition vote was less than 300

Columbus Excited Over the Election

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15 Interest in the election is not abated The streets were crowded all night, and are still in the same condition Business men are discussing the result in a most excited manner Nothing is heard to change the estimates of last night Complete returns have been received from 20 counties The reports are never so prompt before This indicates that there were but few scratched tickets

A great deal of mystery surrounds the Prohibition vote and upon this and withholding of reports from few counties the Democrats hope of cutting down the Republican majority to below 15,000 is based

The contest for Congressman in the third district is very close, but as Morey the Republican candidate run ahead of his ticket 132 votes in Clermont county, which is Mesh in hope of over 500 votes in favor of the Republicans, this friends claim his election The indications are that Johnson the Republican candidate for Supreme Court Judge, has a majority of 1,000 in Hamilton county, and that he is ahead of the other candidates notwithstanding the opposition of the liquor interest If this is confirmed, it will show that the temperance Democrats scratched their own candidate and voted for Johnson

The Great Interest in Toledo

TOLEDO, Oct 15 The interest in the election was so great that last crowds remained at the political headquarters nearly all night Early this morning when the Republican victory was assured, the enthusiasm found vent in various ways Hundreds of men with tin horns, joined by others with torches, formed a procession and marched through the streets The whole Lorenzo has witnessed no bitterness of the interest, especially in the result of the Congressional fight

Another Report from Hamilton County

CINCINNATI, O Oct 15 The total unofficial returns from Hamilton county show the following pluralities on the State and Congressional ticket Robinson, Republican for Secretary of State, 2,238; Johnson Republican for Judge of Supreme Court 2,557, Hickenger, Republican, for Board of Public Works, 3 147, Butterworth, Republican, First District 1,520, Congress 1,526, Brown, Republican Second District Congress, 2 087 The total vote of Hamilton county was 72 078

EVENING DESPATCHES

But two Parties in the Field—The Greenback and Prohibition Vote Insignificant

CINCINNATI, O, Oct 15 Returns received from all parts of the State uniform Robinson, an increased vote In many places the Democratic vote is reduced Another feature shows that the people were more than ordinarily arrayed in the two great parties Both the Greenback and Prohibition vote was comparatively insignificant, and the vote was as distinctly in favor of the Presidential ticket had been before the people A matter of great surprise is the large vote received by the Republican candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court

It is now my firm belief that the Democrats will fall far below the rest of the ticket, owing to dissatisfaction among the soldiers on account of his action on the pensions question Reports from the country districts up to the remainder of the ticket Hope in Hamilton County the vote is greater than that for Robinson Clark County, it is estimated, will give 2,500 Republican majority and Scioto County about 700 with Judge Johnson leading the ticket Athens County gives Grosvenor Hoyt, for Congress, 1,000 majority Belmont shows a slight Democratic gain Gallia, Scioto, Jackson, Lancaster, Marietta and Somerset also show a small Democratic gain The Republicans are jubilant, crowds are upon the streets and upon the least provocation shouting and yelling

Hurd Concedes His Defeat.

COLUMBUS, O, Oct 17 A despatch from Toledo says Hurd conceded the election of Rainey to Congress from the 10th District, Rainey is from Hamilton County, says Campbell, Democrat is elected to Congress in the 21st district by 418 majority Forty-three counties show a net Republican gain of 12,625 This includes Hamilton County, but not Cuyahoga, Franklin and Lucas counties Of the 16 counties to hear from 12 give Republican majorities and 24 Democratic majorities for Governor in 1883

Lowden's Last 1,858 Majority Over Hurd

TOLEDO, Oct. 15 The complete, though unofficial vote of Lucas County on Secretary of State and Congressman, is received by the Republican County Committee is—Robinson, 8,311 Newman 7 706 Rainey, 8 311 Hurd, 7 213

The Majorities by Counties

COLUMBUS, O, Oct 16 Unofficial Republican returns have been received from all the counties except five Carroll, Geauga, Erie, Medina and Trumbull which in 1883 all gave Republican majorities ranging from 700 to 7 072 The following counts show unofficial Republican majorities on the State ticket as follows Adams 1,000, Allen, 1 233, Athens 1,600, Belmont, 2 700, Clinton 1,000 Clarke, 2,000 Clermont, 700, Clinton 1,400, Columbiana 2 218, Darlington 2 700, Delaware, 120 Fayette, 700, Fulton, 900, Gallia, 12 000 Greene 2 200, Guernsey 750, Hamilton, 2,238 Hardin 384, Harrison 200, Highland 77, Hancock 1,169 Jackson 600, Jefferson, 1,172 Lake, 1 200 Lawrence, 1,825 Logan 1,178, Lucas, 1,311, Madison 154, Mahoning 1,053 Meigs 1 831, Miami, 924, Morgan, 190 Morrow, 420 Noble, 280 Portage, 625 Preble, 283 Sandusky, 1 311, Stark, 1,700 Union 1,137, Vanwert 200, Warren 1,734, Washington, 1,105, Wood, 600, Total 45,115

Household Hints.

(New York Evening Post)

"A cream pie made after this rule is an improvement upon the old-time, so-called, cream pie: Make a rich custard; if possible use cream, but if not use rich milk and some cream with it; bake this in a pastry shell; while it is baking whip a coffee-cup full of thick, sweet cream till it is as light as it can be, and when the pie is taken from the oven put the whipped cream on the top.

"Fresh beat pancake or bread dough is very nice; after the dough has risen the first time take a piece about the size you would need for a loaf of bread, roll this out on the kneading board until it is not more than an inch thick; use this spread any kind of fruit that you choose, English currants, chopped raisins, stewed figs, or jam, may any of them be used; sprinkle a little powdered sugar over the fruit, and put some little lumps of butter here and there on it, or spread the dough with butter before putting the fruit on it. Roll it up very tightly into a loaf, let it rise, and bake it in a hot oven. Cut in thick slices when done. This may take the form of a plum pudding in this case it must be served hot, with sauce. The sauce should be rich and highly seasoned, and the pudding must be cut in thick slices, and the sauce should be very hot, so that it will penetrate and soften the crust.

"Gingerbread nuts are made by taking the dough just as in the fruit loaf. Spread the dough with butter and sprinkle cinnamon and sugar over it; roll it up tightly; then cut off strips as you would if you were making biscuit; put them into the baking tins, put a little lump of butter on the top of each one, and sprinkle sugar and cinnamon on each; let them rise, until light, then bake quickly. These are especially nice for tea.

"The low, square rattan chairs so much used in halls may be brightened, and be made rather more comfortable also, by having cushions to the seat. Almost any chintzy material will answer for the covering, and for a shoulder cushion the crazy patchwork is strikingly pretty.

"Sofa pillows are now made in the same shape and style as the sheppardess described in this column recently; that is, flat in large, old-fashioned work-bags, with the facing turned over and caught down loosely on the right side so that its handsome enlarging may be seen. If of plush, the embroidery must be in some large and strong pattern to be effective. A large piece of thread is a useful addition and should be placed where the shining ends.

"A convalescent with capricious appetite and one three be tempted to eat of this: Take two thin slices of graham bread, butter them and put on the lower, slice pan-sean hot stewed berries. Hot apple sauce is also nice for this; press the upper slice upon it, and, after buttering the top slightly, pour boiling water over it. This must be gradual or almost unseasoned pudding, the most will be pulped, and love's labor will be lost.

"To the boys it went this summer, on account of the illness of their mother, to spend two months with their aunt in the country. She is a good woman, and the old aunt home, with its coral strawberries, was, or rather might have been, a continual delight to the boys, but they were not happy, and it was during their residence there that they learned to chate Sunday, and when they left for home they felt with the uneasy consciousness that there was a certain sort of mockery in their farewells, and that they had not been very good boys. One of them was particularly wretched at times because he knew that he should be obliged by a tender conscience to tell his mother that he had been rude to his aunt. It was on the weary Sunday, when tired of staying in the house, and tired of being told that he must not whittle, and he was tired of everything, and he could not be quiet, and he was tired of being told that he must be quiet, and he was tired of being told that he was tired, that he was asked to be allowed to go out into the back yard and watch the grass-hoppers a little while, and when forbidden, he inquired in a wrathful tone if it were wicked. "No," his aunt said, "but Mr. M.'s folks will see you out there and think you are playing on Sunday." The exasperated child then cried out, "It seems to me you are more afraid of Mr. M.'s folks than you are of God!" When their mother questioned them and told to the point just what it was that rendered the so ill at ease with their aunt, one of the children summed it all up by saying, "Why, mamma, she notices every thing we do!" The child did not imagine that the way going utterance to wisdom had in it, a very suggestive remark, for it proves that much of the governing and subduing power of a true mother lies in the fact that she appreciates the necessity of cultivating her good both to see and not to see, and that she knows how to accomplish this feat.

"The proper attention which some mothers and guardians give to children cannot be of value to them—it is just as bad to develop self-consciousness in a child by nothing ever fault and every awkward motion found fault, as to foundate a spirit of self-satisfaction by praising and applauding. A person is absolutely contagious in intercourse with men, and what we commonly call 'the world,' to have his high estimate of himself considerably lowered. There is very little danger of one thinking too highly of himself, after the first youthful outbreak of the feeling that he is not quite equal to mould the destinies of earth, but that he is going to do it; but the timidity and distrust engendered by habitual fault-finding and criticism he may never be able to overcome, and it may detract from his power and force as long as he lives.

"In little ways this is felt. A schoolmate of my own, a beautiful and cultivated woman, told me that her mother's anxiety for her daughter should have agreeable and easy manners led her to remark upon every possible occasion that she did not hold her head or her hands as she should, that unless she gave much thought to it she would not succeed in ever doing so, and so impressed it on a sensitive girl that at thirty she always shrank and trembled before entering a room, and dreaded so greatly to meet strangers that she had been in trap to her husband. If any woman is inclined to think for sphere a narrow one, if she feels that her life is going to be tangle, let her study her child, his nature and possibilities, and if she is a close observer, she will find no definite and limited quantity with which she has to deal. It will ever widen and increase before her. She will find continual surprises and food for thought. The true science of immortal youth is largely only to catch the spirit of a learner; one may sit at school in the presence of a child of two years old, as Wordsworth represents. Whoever sitting with children at her knee."

Date cake, which is very nice with tea and pudding, is made by stewing dates in just enough water to cover them; let them simmer for three-quarters of an hour, then lift the dates and rub them through a colander, beat it until it is light, and water if it is needed to thin it, let it come to a boil. If you have saved the juice of fruit, when canning it, use this instead of water to thin the sauce. The juice of currants is especially appetizing.

Delicious oyster sauce to serve with fish, is made thus: Have the oysters opened carefully so that the liquor may be saved, put it into a porcelain-lined saucepan, then put the oysters in and let them come to the boiling point; take the pan from the fire, pour the contents into a basin, then drain the liquor from the oysters into the sauce-pan, and add to it enough milk to make in all half a pint; add a large lump of butter, set the pan on the back of the range, and when very hot drop the oysters in; let the pan stand where the sauce will be kept hot, but not boiling, as that shrivels the oysters and makes them hard. This sauce may be poured over the fish or it may be served in a gravy boat. For one course at dinner if you cannot obtain fresh fish, take a can of salmon, and after heating it and draining every drop of oil from it, pour this sauce over it, and you have an appetizing and really tempting dish.

A pretty gift is that of a pen-wiper made in the form of a pansy. Pick a pansy in the garden, take it apart carefully, and cut an exact pattern of its leaves. Then you may enlarge this to please yourself. The leaves should be of velvet with markings in embroidery silk. The edges should be lightly buttonholed; beneath these upper leaves the real pen-wiper lies; it is of small and fine flannel leaves; cut the edges in tiny points so that they will not fray.

One who retains the "sweet tooth" of his childhood will find this to his liking. Make a banana pie with a lower crust only; bake the crust first, then fill it with sliced bananas and powdered sugar; the fruit will soften sufficiently in a few minutes. Cover the top with whipped cream and eat at once.

The excellence of the following recipe for keeping tomatoes is vouched for by two good women who have proved its virtues for many years: Choose perfectly sound, ripe tomatoes, the skin must be unbroken, and the tomatoes must not be soft; they should be taken from the vines at the stage when they have just turned red; put them into a jar, and pour over them vinegar and water in the proportion of two parts of water to one of vinegar, turn a plate over them and put a weight upon it so that the tomatoes will all be kept well under; then tie a cloth over the jar, put the cover on and set it in a cool cellar or closet. Tomatoes preserved in this way have been known to keep for months; if it is certain that the tomatoes shall be kept covered with the vinegar and water, for if one even is not, it will decay and the ferment occasioned by it will spoil all the others.

Mrs. L. finds it is easier and more satisfactory to use the frames made of wood when embroidering, or to depend upon your hands alone to keep the work smooth. Experience leads me to choose the frames, as then you are absolutely certain to keep it smooth, and the pattern is less likely to be rubbed off. A look of smoothness may be given to embroidery by skilful pressing; fold a woolen blanket in several thicknesses, and lay the work upon it. Then cut an old linen handkerchief not the cover the embroidery, and press with a hot iron; then, removing the handkerchief, press until dry.

The "SOLAR TIP" is the best SHOE for boys & girls. So popular that MANY IMITATIONS ARE MADE

New names are springing up every day, such as Sole Leather Tip, etc., and many who think they are getting the genuine "SOLAR TIP" get only an IMITATION. See that our Trade Mark is on the sole of each pair and that our name is printed in full on it.
